

Corporate Greed or Funding the Schools We Need?

Los Angeles deserves a robust public education system. That's what drove tens of thousands of educators, parents, and community members to the streets during our strike. Now we must drive that energy to the June 4 ballot and vote YES on EE.

With Measure EE, we have a once-in-a-career opportunity to capture $500 million in ongoing local funding annually for our schools. And this win will fuel our fight for more funding at the state and federal levels.

Big businesses and corporate landlords who oppose Measure EE will pay more than 70% and homeowners will pay 18% of the funding. The average homeowner will pay only $238 a year. Corporate special interests, like the Chamber of Commerce and the Howard Jarvis Association, are waging a costly campaign against Measure EE. They refuse to pay their fair share to fund the future for LAUSD students — the majority of whom are children of color from low-income families.

With two-thirds majority needed to win, Measure EE will not pass on June 4 without all of us fighting collectively for the local funding our students desperately need!

Two UTLA actions to win EE

1. Vote Yes!

With an extremely low voter turnout predicted, it is not an exaggeration to say to every vote counts on June 4. If you live in LAUSD boundaries, register and mail your absentee ballot today or make a plan to get to the polls on Tuesday, June 4.

2. Volunteer Today!

Every weekend through Election Day on June 4, we are joining community groups to talk to voters about Measure EE. Make volunteering a group effort! Revive the energy of your time on the strike line by volunteering with your picket line friends or your rally carpool crew. Or challenge your grade-level or subject matter colleagues to sign up with you.
